

SYSTEMS AND STRATEGIC THINKING.

A Cognadev course.

The system and strategic thinking course offers an alternative to a purely analytical approach. It identifies the differences and overlapping of system and strategic thinking. It focuses on creative problem solving and strategy formulation. It stimulates the appreciation of complexity and dynamic inter-relationships between processes. This course further creates an awareness of the importance of adjusting thinking to meet the complex demands of the business environment. Lastly, it enhances decision-making in complex and ambiguous environments.

The benefits.

The Cognitive Process Profile provides an indication before the commencement of the course of how well systems and strategic thinking have been mastered by the individual. The course facilitates the necessary skills to improve competence and develop potential, designed to have an impact on behaviour, decision-making and expression of ideas and intended actions in everyday and business contexts.

A separate pre-assessment targets specific developmental areas, while the work-contextual training allows the lessons and skills to be internalised. The practical lessons and skills can be internalised, allowing application on a day to day basis. Optional follow-up sessions can be arranged, aimed at ensuring theory is transferred into practice.

Core aspects.

- Identifying the real challenges without attention being diverted by minor issues
- Dynamic Analysis clarifying underlying structures, identifying intended actions and unintended results
- Creative strategy formulation, consolidation and evaluation

What you need to know.

Duration:	Three day course.
Material:	Pre-work material and course workbook.
Group size:	Six to twelve delegates.
Accreditation:	Participation and input during the training is required for accreditation.
Venue:	Cognadev's premises or at an arranged venue.

www.cognadev.com
+27 (0) 11 884 0878
magellancon@cognadev.co.za